Thoth tarot prince of cups

My new YouTube channel is: Thoth Tarot Video. The short cards of cards are still to be redone. (ii) a thoth prince of cups The Prince of Copps appears naked apart from his helmet that has a eagle's coat of arms. He is sitting on a shell wagon drawn by Scorpio Eagle. He rides on a lake of water and holds a cup with the left hand from which a snake emerges and an upturned lotus in the right hand. The lake is calm, but strong rain falls on it according to Crowley (P158 book by Thoth) The importance of Scorpio A spiritual sign can be shown in the following photograph of a church window in France: Mary surrounded by the four aquarium signs, Scorpio, Leo, Taurus. A, the eagle flies and has a great perspective on life. The importance of the eagle can be viewed in the Below Church window, as this astrological signa is linked to San Giovanni della Bible. (iii) a prince of cups: a sub elements to the prince of cups rules the airy part of water.following elementary dignity rules, water and air reinforce each other, but are neutral, so there are no elementary contradicts in his make up . However in the prince of cups they combine with the energies of Scorpio to quite an intense character. As a steady flow flows, so it makes the prince of cups, trying to get the most out of life possible. (IV) Tetragrammaton and the prince of cups The principles represent the Vau part of the Tetragrammaton and are the product of the Union of Yodh and he primal or the Knight and the queen, respectively. They are therefore proven to be a two hybrid, having both the queen's stability through the fixed wagon, and the activity and the movement of the knight through the forces moving the wagon. His actions are therefore more lasting than the knight but less than the queen. (V) The Prince of Cups and the tree of life is, A, a, the principles are found in the sixth Sephiroth, Tiphareth in the midst of the tree of life that represents harmony and balance after we had the experiences of the Opposite forces of the gravity pier and the pillar of mercy. Tiphareth is Kether, but on a lower vibration and Yesod, but on a higher vibration. It is the child who emanates from Kether above, but from the lower floors is like the dominator of the skies. This Sephiroth is also associated with Beauty A e. The Prince of Cups, which represents the element of Watera would be found in the first world of Briah illustrated in the above diagram, the right. It can be represented by tantric sex, and communication with another physically exploring everything that is, both clear and dark. He doesn't hide away from life. (Vi) astrology, of the Prince of Coppe he governs from grade 21 of the scale to the 20th degree of Scorpio, as indicated in the following scheme: A, from the diagram can be seen that the prince of Cups rules the 4 of swords in the last decade of the scale, along with the 5 and 6 of cups in scorpion. The prince of Cups is 2 / 3rds Scorpio, 1/3 A ° Libra A, an explanation of the card in terms of astrology can be found in an article below I quoted here: A e the ability to disconnect as a scale It is a sign of air from heavy, intense, obsessive, emotions that control SCORPIO.The~~AA~~a, control card shows and balance of mind and emotions. A, vigilance is necessary. The reverse of the coin is going too much in the opposite direction and be afraid of really feeling and to open and love. Many people do this fresh acting and detached and untouchable, but ita all a false front for fear and insecurity. Usually the female asks the masculine to go deeper into her feelings to join her in the crucible, the Grail, where the 2 of her meet as one in a relationship.A e (Tara Greene) so Libra and Scorpio are not the best of mixtures, with the air sign of the scale trying to control the water sign of the scorpion. The male energies of Mars and the sun in Scorpio give rise to its aggressive, ambitious personality. (Vi) symbolism of Prince of the cups There are two of the three symbols for scorpion that are discussed for a long time in death, that is the snake and eagle. Scorpio is what is absent. Crowley describes the latter as the most mysterious as is the closer to the death process. Chariot on water = shell-shaped, does not touch the water, but pushing it over the air in the air, so not involving in its emotions, to the extent that they hold back in life. This also implies a secret nature that does not allow us to see its depth and what lies under the water. He wants to always go ahead with his life. Left hand = Keep the reins checking the eagle. They are black that imply the putrefaction (decay) associated with scorpion. We will talk about it more when we arrive at the Death Charter which is associated with decay and transformation. The right hand = the flower of the inverted lotus (symbolic of water) is inverted. This implies that he holds his emotions and intuition as less important than him's intellect. Cup with wrapping snake = Snake is also a symbol of mercury and intellect. Look at this giving him his favor on the lotus flower. The number 8 = occurs in the groupings of the feather of the eagle and vaporous wings on the back of the paper. Eight represents the eighth Sephira, HOD that is associated with the intellect. Although this is a water card, we have a lot of air associated with it. This gives paper your volatility because the air and water can produce rather intense time! We have a lot of air combined with scorpion depth giving them a very intense nature. The eagle is the maximum expression of Scorpio, which mentions spiritual liberation, but this has not been done, it has not transferred through the 21 major too many, but means that it has much potential within him. The apostles were represented by the 4 fixed signs of the astrological zodiac, before the Church that removes this association. In the photos of the first, for example, John the Baptist, who baptized from the water was associated with eagle as shown in the following figure: although Crowley refers to Eagle as "the less important part of his nature" (P, 158, Bot) Looking at the snake, promotes life and the goal overcomes the love that the flower of the lotus door. It must learn to integrate the two up to its potential. A, (viii) the minor arcane cards ruled by the prince of cups 4 swords (truce) a, this card represents a period of rest and healing that is usually necessary after a period of trauma in someone's life. This period has long since we can collect our strength again to move to a more productive phase later. If we don't use wisdom this time, then we could end up in a repetition cycle as before. In the prince of the cups comes when it is exhausted by the swingle between periods of passion and loss as presented by the two cards under the sign of Scorpio. 5 cups (disappointment) This card often appears when our expectations were scarcing, nor our or someone else. Leave a feeling of sadness and disappointment, so we have to look if we have set realistic goals. We need to be careful not closed ourselves and stop trying to move our lives forward after this episode. In the Prince of the Cups it represents one of those moments in which, in the full of research of life on the margins, he experiences the loss that is inevitable. 6 cups (pleasure) This paper brings the potential for equilibrium and harmony to the prince of the cups. There is an intensity for the six cups that resound with the scorpion intensity that governs this card. Adds an emotional depth to a sexual relationship, giving it intensity. This characterizes the relationships of the prince of the cups. It is the goal of him and this is what makes it happier. It does not only represent the Sexual, but getting the most from life by experiencing it with full using the energy of the sun in the intense sign of Scorpio. (IX) Ching and the prince of cups A e Prince Prince The cups are associated with the 61 A Chung hexagram was as shown below: This hexagram is indicated as intuition or (inner truth), which results from applying our inner strength to the situation at hand. We must allow the forces of the situation to act fully on us and therefore we should give up in our nature. In this process we become one with our surroundings, beyond pure observation, so that we can know that things are truly without prejudice. Our friendships and relationships are based on higher truths rather than a more inactive conversation. The upper sun trigram is called A e a, - A "penetration of efforts" and is enriched by the lower trigram til or a, a, A "openNess A a". So an open attitude reaches intuition through our ability to see things as they are really well beyond the discrimination of the mind. The scorpions are intense! (x) The sensing meanings of the prince of the cups in a vertical position on the surface can appear calm but this mask a passion and intensity on him that can make it volatile. It has a lot to give, immense capacity but it cannot be invoked (remember that it is not really an integrated whole). His main responsibility is to himself and not to others. A e a, - "For such good people, sinforth and fair coupling are the essential elements of success; Their danger is an overwhelming ambition ... (bot, p.158-159) can be secret, hiding their deeper desires. He can be creative often in arts or music. He can easily identify with the ups and bass in life and can use their intuition (when they want) to lose intuition in the lives of others, since they have a full immersion in life itself. The prince of the cups reversed its worst cruel, reckless and selfish (XI) Celtic cross interpretation of the prince of the cups 1: the heart of the situation = Are you working on the flow of life or holding back? 2: possible obstacle = you have to come from your highest well and mix with ... unconscious influences = ambition by making preference to really know about 4: recent past = periods of high and minimum extremes 5: hopes and goals = feeling more on Life and enthusiam to be alive. Know yourself better and be more balanced 6: The future in the short term = could be intense emotionally, mentally, might need time from these extremes 7: our image of a secret, hiding a volatility under a calm exterior. Ambitious, go with the flow of life. 8: Environment = Someone Close who is ambitious, can be cruel and selfish 9: Guide and Warning = You must be more in touch with your depth and not let the ambition dominates you. Your friends and those mixing are very important in driving you to a more balanced life 10: the overall result of the result = must be good while we are talking about an eagle that goes up! You will have a much larger perspective on life-like eagle but what is it that it costs? You may have had a lot of extreme extreme and low to get and yet your potential is always present to be highly evolved spiritually (as represented by the Association with John the Baptist discussed above).
