Over time, computers often become slow and lazy, making even more fundamental processes take longer than they should. Even the best-rated PC will slow down as you install the software and download the files that use your system resources, but you can help your computer work faster. Cleaning my PC can optimize the system by cleaning some important areas of the computer. Go through the Program Manager and delete any program you do not use. This may include programs that have come pre-installed on your computer or some that have installed itself. These programs use disk space, memory and processing power, so they should go. Run the Disk Cleanup process to remove all temporary files and unnecessary system files. Empty the Trash. Execute the disk defragmenter to reorganize the fragmented data on the hard drive, making it more efficient. Check the Task Manager to see which programs are run on startup. Whatever you do not need or want to be running in the background when you start the computer can be disqualified from this list. You can always open these programs to start them manually when you need them. The operating system must remain current to ensure that it functions efficiently. You can program automatic updates to happen as updates become available. If you do not set the computer to update automatically, you need to manually install the updates by clicking on Windows Update and selecting Install. The computer will check the updates, and you get to review them before choosing to install. Restore my PC to a previous date When computer problems activate, try to restore your PC to a previous time when it was working properly. Windows allows you to restore from Recovery point preset simply by opening the control panel. PC owners can then choose to Recover, Open System Restore and Next to explore what will happen if you restore. You can review a list of programs and files that would be deleted if you restore the PC to a previous previous To proceed with the recovery, just select Finish and the process will begin. Further updates from ConsiderValue update some components of your PC to make it work faster. If your computer gets bogged down when you try to run a large program or several programs at the same time, you might need more RAM. Check the computer specs to see if you can add RAM, and try this if it's 128;s possible. You might also consider adding a new hard drive, attaching an external storage drive, or replacing your video card to add speed to your PC. More Tips for SpeedSpyware and viruses can slow down your computers, so you can scan your PC with an antivirus program. Remove or quarantine viruses that appear on the scan. Keep virus protection in place on your computer to prevent infestations. Adjusting visual effects can also help improve computer performance. Open the Control Panel and then type in Performance Information and Tools. Choose aAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA Click to finish. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED. NET Backup your Android phone to your PC is simply smart. Having all your data securely hidden on your computer gives you instant access to it on your PC as well as protects your information if something happens to your phone. Data from Back UpGenerally, the backup process will include all important information that you want to save. This data includes applications and settings installed, your contacts and call history, device settings, photos, videos and text messages. Depending on the age of your phone, your backup might also include your Google contacts, calendar events, Gmail settings, backgrounds, display settings, date and time, saved Wi-Fi networks and passwords and settings and data for non-Google applications. Google is the main way to back up Android users on PC. The easiest way to back up is to just give Google permission to back up your data. Opening the settings and then choosing And backup, your phone will go through the backup process. You can see a list of options for all the items you want to back up. In this case, select the items to run. Manual Backup Process If you want to manually back up items such as pictures and videos, this is a simple process. Connect your phone to your PC with a USB cable. Once connected, your PC will recognize your phone and show it as an external storage device. Double-click your phone, open the DCIM folder, and select the photos and videos you want to transfer to your computer. Wait until their transfer, confirm thethe226; they are on your computer and then you can disconnect your phone. Android Auto Update Part of managing your phone involves keeping apps up to date. Set your phone so that your apps automatically update when developers release changes. Open the Google Play Store on your phone. Then tap is Menu, it's and it's Auto Update Apps. You can decide whether you want to update apps right away or only when you have Wi-Fi. Android Device Manager Login The Android Device Manager has a number of uses for managing your phone. You can use it to keep track of where your phone is at all times. Open is Services- and so is Security. Check to remotely locate this device so the Device Manager protects your data if you lose your phone. By registering your Android Device Manager, you can check Device Settings to see when you last backed up your phone. Your Device Manager also lets you tell your phone when to back up and any specific applications you want to run at regular intervals. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED. NET QUESTIONSANSWERED. NET
