Copyright © 2021 Infospace Holdings, LLC, a company System1 Company Correct answer: When someone asks you for your favorite character Harry Potter, you might findchoose one. From the classic Trio (Harry, Ron and Hermione) to fantasticlike Neville Longbottom, Luna Lovegood, and the Severus Snape complex, how can you perhaps single out just a favorite? Sure, there are frontrunners. After all, characters like Hermione, Ron, Harry, Neville, Luna, Snape and other popular favorites are so impressive and complex that it is natural that we would all be fans. However, there are quite a few characters that tend to get side filled. When was the last time you heard someone say that their favorite Harry Potter character was, like, Ravenclaw Terry Boot's student? Granted, we couldn't read much about Terry, but he was still an important character — he was in D.A., and also explained Ravenclaw's diadem to Harry. Unfortunately, that still did not guarantee him a slot in the movies. Which, as incredible as they were, had to cut a lot of characters like Terry for a while. The bottom line is, the world of Hogwarts is so expanded and complex, that there are much more characters in the list than we think — or often even remember. And don't they all deserve their time to shine? Millicent Bulstrode When Hermione drank Polyjuice potion and accidentally turned into a cat, he was actually trying to turn into Millicent Bulstrode. Millicent isn't Hogwarts' finest student. He's a member of the Inquisitorial Team of Umbridge, and he's just a generally crude person. However, it played a significant role in many of the adventures of the trio, starting from that Polyjuice incident potion. Penelope Clearwater Ginny discovers that Percy has a girlfriend in Harry Potter and the Secret House: Prefect companion Penelope Clearwater. Needless to tease Fred and George. His mirror saved Hermione from Basilisk, however, it is worth mentioning. Marcus FlintSlytherin Quidditch captain Marcus Flint was quite rough — Harry thought he had troll blood in him — and he was practically Oliver Wood's main rival. If he kept playing Quidditch professionally, as Oliver did, their rivalry would be quite impressive, right? Angelina Johnson Another Quidditch player, Angelina, eventually became captain after Oliver Wood's degree. Unfortunately he did not play as great of a role in films as he did in books, but his furious spirit is always inspired on the page - deserves to be mentioned more often. Alicia Spinnet The women of the Gryffindor Quidditch team were really an impressive group, and this extends to Chaser Alicia Spinnet. He stood up for Hermione when Malfoy called her Mudblood, and it was a voice of reason when Oliver made some of his most questionable decisions. Okay, now I really want a series on all these Quidditch players. Alicia's love-hate relationship with Oliver Wood, superb Quidditch skills, and independent personality deserve totally more book time (or screen). (Um, TV showIrma Pince Lady Pince, the Super-Strict Hogwarts librarian, is a force to consider. She protects her books with fierce ferocious, and she was Because of J.K. The "fearing childhood librarian of Rowling." Also, you may or may not have a relationship with the filch. Hogwarts Professor Drama... I must love you. Romilda Vaneah, Romilda. Obsessed with Harry, accidentally love-potions Ron. He also asks Ginny if Harry has a tattooed hippogriff on his chest, which leads to the hilarious response of Ginny which is a Hungarian horrtail, but Ron has a lazy down jacket. Maybe she was a little crazy, but hey, she was a teenage girl obsessed with Harry Potter. Most of us can report.sir Cadogan'sir is my favorite portrait because it is so funny: he has a soft to jump from portrait to portrait, screaming after students. However, he is a good boy at "Grida encouragement to all during the battle of Hogwarts. I would totally read arthurian legends about the hilarious Lord Catadogan.Great Aunt Murielron's Gossipy Aunt Muriel provides a racing comment on everyone who frequents the Bill and the marriage of Fleur, which is fun, though offensive to all. Yet, she owns a Tiara made by Goblin, which is quite interesting, and makes you marvel at her Backstory. Celestina Warbeckknatown as the "Lord of Song". Celestina is the voice behind the songs as "a warm, strong love cauldron". She may not make an appearance in the movies, but you can participate in her "concerts" in the Harry Potter wizard world, so at least she gets some time to shine. Petrare, Peeves was completely cut out of Harry Potter's films, but his presence in books cannot be ignored. When he takes Fred and George's orders to give Umbridge "devil from us", he eventually uses his annoying nature forever. Hogwarts would not be the same without Him.Immages: Amanda Richards / Flickr, Warner Bros (10
